

Marketing Pluralism

- Editorial: One Size Does Not Fit All, Or Does It? Marissa Sison
 - Viewpoint: Multicultural Marketing and the Reasons Why Felipe Korzenny
 - Viewpoint: Use and Abuse of Cultural Elements in Multicultural Advertising David Burgos
 - Hispanic Ethnicity and Media Behavior Ricardo Villarreal, Robert A. Peterson
 - Targeting a Minority without Alienating the Majority: Advertising to Gays and Lesbians in Mainstream Media
Gillian K. Oakenfull, Michael S. McCarthy, and Timothy B. Greenlee
 - The Effectiveness of Using a Global Look in an Asian Market Chingching Chang
 - Television Advertising in the Arab World: A Status Report Morris Kalliny, Grace Dagher, Michael S. Minor, and Gilberto De Los Santos
 - Culturally Customizing Websites for U.S. Hispanic Online Consumers Nitish Singh, Daniel W. Baack, Arun Pereira, and Donald Baack
 - Television Attitudes and TV Types of African-Americans, Latinos, and Caucasians Terri C. Albert and Randy D. Jacobs
 - Collecting Hidden Consumer Data Online: Research on Homosexuals Felicitas Morhart, Sven Henkel, and Walter Herzog
-
- Children's Responses to Gender-Role Stereotyped Advertisements Aysen Bakir, Jeffrey G. Blodgett, and Gregory M. Rose
 - Why Do Advertisers Use Puns? A Linguistic Perspective Elmira Djafarova
 - Exploring the Audience's Role: A Decoding Model for the 21st Century Alexandra J. Kenyon, Emma H. Wood, and Anthony Parsons
 - Predicting Premium Proneness Gerard P. Prendergast, Derek T. Y. Poon, Alex S. L. Tsang, and Ting Yan Fan
 - Review of *Super Crunchers: Why Thinking-by-Numbers Is the New Way to Be Smart Mike Cooke