

EDITORIAL	The Future of Marketing Research Geoffrey Precourt . . . . . 207 Management Slant . . . . . 209
GUEST EDITORIAL	The Shape of Marketing Research in 2021 Anca Cristina Micu, Kim Dedeker, Ian Lewis, Robert Moran, Oded Netzer, Joseph Plummer, and Joel Rubinson . . . . . 213
COMMENTARY	Evidence Proves The Future Is Now: Why Great Creative Needs Great Research Eileen Campbell . . . . . 222
ARTICLES	THE FUTURE OF MARKETING RESEARCH Tracking Back-Talk in Consumer-Generated Advertising: An Analysis of Two Interpretative Approaches Colin Campbell, Leyland F. Pitt, Michael Parent, and Pierre Berthon . . . . . 224 Online Persuasion: How the Written Word Drives WOM—Evidence from Consumer-Generated Product Reviews Jin Li and Lingjing Zhan. . . . . 239 Friends, Fans, and Followers: Do Ads Work on Social Networks? How Gender and Age Shape Receptivity David G. Taylor, Jeffrey E. Lewin, and David Strutton . . . . . 258 Hulu.com or NBC? Streaming Video versus Traditional TV: A Study of an Industry in Its Infancy Kelty Logan . . . . . 276 The Appeal of Reality Television for Teen and Pre-Teen Audiences: The Power of “Connectedness” and Psycho-demographics Anthony Patino, Velitchka D. Kaltcheva, and Michael F. Smith . . . . . 288 The Bluetooth Enigma: Practicalities Impair Potential—Awareness is High. Can Usage Be Higher? Antje Cockrill, Mark M. Goode, and Amy White . . . . . 298 Following the Fashionable Friend: The Power of Social Media—Weighing the Publicity Effectiveness Of Blogs versus Online Magazines Jonas Colliander and Micael Dahlén . . . . . 313 Pitting the Mall Against the Internet In Advertising-Research Completion: Internet Panels are More Popular. Are They More Effective? Thomas Maronick. . . . . 321