

EDITORIAL	The Power of Television in a Digital Age Geoffrey Precourt 109 Management Slant 111
VIEWPOINT	What Behavioral Economics Can Teach Marketing Research Joel Rubinson 114
BOOK REVIEW	Customer Engagement Is the New Marketing Lynne d Johnson 118
ORQC UPDATE	The March toward Quality: The ARF's Quality-Enhancement Process Ray Pettit 120
COMMENTARY	Cracking the Cross-Media Code: How to Use Single-Source Measures to Examine Media Cannibalization and Convergence Glenn Enoch and Kelly Johnson 125
ARTICLES	THE POWER OF TELEVISION IN A DIGITAL AGE Measurable Emotions—How Television Ads Really Work: Patterns of Reactions to Commercials Can Demonstrate Advertising Effectiveness Anca Cristina Micu and Joseph T. Plummer 137 Using Interactive Program-Loyalty Banners to Reduce TV Ad Avoidance: Is It Possible to Give Viewers a Reason to Stay Tuned during Commercial Breaks? Stephen Richard Dix, Steven Bellman, Hanadi Haddad, and Duane Varan 154 Assessing a New Advertising Effect: Measurement of the Impact of Television Commercials on Internet Search Queries Dan Zigmund and Horst Stipp 162 The Power of Emotional Appeals in Advertising: The Influence of Concrete Versus Abstract Affect On Time-Dependent Decisions Cenk Bülbül and Geeta Menon 169 <hr/> A Netnographic Exploration: Listening to Online Consumer Conversations Rama K. Jayanti 181 Listening Solutions: A Marketer's Guide to Software and Services Stephen D. Rappaport 197 Match Game: Linking Sponsorship Congruence with Communication Outcomes Gerard P. Prendergast, Derek Poon, and Douglas C. West 214